Questions 1-12 refer to the following passage.

The reasons for the extinction of a species and for the rapid rates of change in our environment are currently the focus of much scientific research. An individual

- (5) species' susceptibility to extinction depends on at least two things: the taxon (the biological group—kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, or genus) to which a species belongs, and the overall rate of environmental change. Fossil evidence shows that (10) more mammals and birds become extinct than do mollusks or insects. Studies of the extinction of the dinosaurs and other reptiles during the Cretaceous Period show that (15) a changing environment affects different taxa in different ways. Some may be dramatically affected, others less so.

- The best way to answer the question of what causes an extinction is to combine (20) fields of inquiry and a variety of viewpoints. Using the fossil record and historical documentation, the different rates of the extinction of various taxa and different responses to environmental change can be detected. (25) Then the evolutionary development of the different species can be compared, and traits that may be disadvantageous can be singled out. Finally, researchers can use mathematical formulae to determine whether a popu- (30) lation is likely to adapt itself to the changing environment or disappear. Hopefully, as more of this information is collected, specialists in different fields— e.g. physiological and behavioral ecology, population ecology, (35) community ecology, evolutionary biology and systematics, biogeography, and paleobiology — will work together to make predictions about the broader changes that might occur in the ecosystem.

Questions 43-50 refer to the following passage.

- Sapphira and the Slave Girl* was the last novel of Willa Cather's illustrious literary career. Although the story takes place in 1856, well before her own birth, she drew heavily on both vivid childhood memories and tales handed down by older relatives to describe life in rural northern Virginia in the middle of the nineteenth century.
- Of Cather's novels, Sapphira and the Slave Girl is the one most concerned with providing an overall picture of day-to-day life in a specific era. A number of the novel's characters, it would seem, are included in the story only because they are representative of the types of people found in 19th century rural Virginia; indeed, a few of them play no part whatsoever in the unfolding of the plot. For instance, we are introduced to a poor white woman, Mandy Ringer, who is portrayed as intelligent and content, despite the fact that she has no formal education and must toil constantly in the fields.
- The title, however, accurately reflects that the novel is mainly about slavery. Cather's attitude toward this institution may best be summed up as somewhat ambiguous. On the one hand, she displays almost total indifference to the legal and political aspects of slavery when she misidentifies certain crucial dates in its growth and development. She never really offers a direct condemnation of slavery. Yet the evil that was slavery gets through to us in her typically subtle ways. Characters like Mrs. Blake who oppose the institution are portrayed in a sympathetic light. Furthermore, the suffering of the slaves themselves and the petty, nasty and often cruel behavior of the slave owners are painted in stark terms.

- (A) Cather's anti-slavery stance
(B) The backdrop of Cather's last novel
(C) Cather's strangely titled novel
(D) Life in the Virginia country

44. The author refers to Sapphira and the Slave Girl as

(B) a sweeping epic of the Old South
(C) using Cather's personal recollections
(D) a political treatise on slavery

45. The word vivid in line 5 is closest in meaning to

- (A) disturbing (B) buried (C) forgotten (D) clear

46. What is NOT true of Mandy Ringer?

- (A) She is a slave. (B) She is intelligent.
(C) She is uneducated. (D) She is poor.

47. In the second paragraph, the author mentions Mandy Ringer in order to emphasize which point?

- (A) The novel displays Cather's mixed feelings about slavery.
(B) The characters are based on Cather's childhood friends.
(C) One of the novel's purposes was to paint a portrait of life in nineteenth-century rural Virginia.
(D) The novel's characters are shown in a positive light because Cather was a supporter of the Old South.

48. According to the author, why is Cather's attitude toward slavery somewhat ambiguous?

- (A) She was knowledgeable about the legal and political aspects of slavery.
(B) She did not denounce slavery directly, only in indirect ways.
(C) She identified equally with slaves and slaveholders.
(D) She was unable to fashion a firm opinion on the issue.

49. One can infer that the author would probably

- (A) like Cather if the author met her

Questions 24-31 refer to the following passage.

- The appearance and character of a hardened lava field depend on numerous factors. Among the key variables are the chemical nature of the magma and the degree of viscosity of the liquid rock once it begins to flow.
- Since the ultimate nature of lava is influenced by chemical composition, it is possible to predict certain aspects of the final appearance of the field from a sample of the molten fluid. The main components of lava are silica and various oxides, including those of potassium, iron, calcium, magnesium, sodium, and aluminum. Magnesium and iron oxides are found in high concentrations in the dark-colored basic basalt, while silica, soda, and potash preponderate in the lighter-colored, acidic felsite rocks.
- The viscosity of the liquid rock helps to determine the appearance of the hardened field's surface. When it issues, the lava is red or even white-hot. It soon begins to cool, and the surface darkens and crusts over. In extremely viscous flows, the underpart may yet be in motion as the surface solidifies. The crust breaks up into a mass of jagged blocks of rock that are carried as a tumbling, jostling mass on the surface of the slowly moving stream. When the stream eventually stops and hardens, the field is extremely rough and difficult to traverse. On the other hand, highly liquid lava may harden with much smoother surfaces that exhibit ropy, curved, wrinkled, and wavelike forms.

24. The degree of viscosity in newly issued lava is a critical determinant of
 (A) the chemical nature of the magma
 (B) whether the lava will be red or white-hot
 (C) the ultimate nature of the hardened lava field
 (D) the viscosity of the liquid rock
25. The chemical composition of a hardened field
 (A) has nothing to do with the viscosity of the liquid rock
 (B) will cause the crusting phenomena common in hardened lava
 (C) is important in shaping the ultimate appearance of the field
 (D) depends upon the degree of viscosity of the original liquid rock
26. In line 20, the word issues most nearly means
 (A) is dormant (B) heats up (C) traverses (D) comes out

27. Knots of surface rocks are characteristic of
 (A) all types of ultimate lava fields
 (B) the initial stage of some lava field formation
 (C) the end result of some highly viscous flows
 (D) only highly liquid, wavelike lava forms
28. If the hardened lava presents a smoother wavelike surface it is likely that
 (A) it was not initially a highly liquid lava
 (B) it results from a highly liquid lava
 (C) its final form will be rough and difficult to traverse
 (D) at issue, it was red-hot
29. The primary function of this passage is to
 (A) explain the primary chemical components of lava, including silica and oxides
 (B) predict when volcanic lava will appear
 (C) warn of the limitations of viscosity and chemical analysis
 (D) discuss two crucial determinants of a hardened lava field's character
30. The word exhibit in line 32 is closest in meaning to
 (A) give off (B) put on (C) show (D) cause
31. This passage would most likely appear in which type of publication?
 (A) an introductory college textbook on geography
 (B) the national events section of a local newspaper
 (C) an introductory college textbook on geology
 (D) a tourist brochure for a volcanic region

Questions 32-42 refer to the following passage.

The period of the American Revolution was a time of contrasts in American fashion. In urban centers, women enjoyed a wide range of expression in the fashions available to them, even though shortages might force a young lady to wear an outfit made from the bright red uniform of her British beau. The patriots, however, tended to scorn fashion as frivolous in time of war. In remote areas, patriotic groups led boycotts of British goods and loomed their own woolen cloth.

In selecting clothes, stylish American ladies depended on "fashion babies"—foot-high dolls illustrating the latest Paris styles. This infatuation with the fashion trends of the "continent" remained intact well into the twentieth century. Indeed, even today, New York's fashion industry has not fully escaped the tyranny of French design.

Mourning garments were almost impossible to obtain since black cloth had to be imported from England; black arm bands were introduced as a substitute. Gauze, indispensable for petticoats, aprons, and ladies' headgear, was also in short supply. There was also a taste for outlandish accessories and fanciful detailing: feathers in hats, elaborate buttons, and gaudily patterned fabrics. These excesses were called "macaroni" and are immortalized in the song Yankee Doodle.
